

of many fights and raids.

Mr. Messingkop, 506 Bloomfield St., remembers Mary Eisleitner and Fred Kesselring. stated he and another officer, Weinthal, arrested a Rose Gleitzman for stealing jewelry in New York. She confessed and stated she sold stuff to May Ray, (Mary Eisleitner) who conducted an intelligence agency on First St., between Madison & Jefferson Sts. May Ray was accused of being a "fence" but was not arrested, as she returned the goods. He said Kesselring obtained his divorce on grounds his wife ran around with man named Frances, who operated a large lumber yard at Newark Ave and Wellock St. He was well known around town, owned several race horses and had plenty of money. He furnished bail for Rose Gleitzman. He is dead a number of years.
